

A LYNCHING.

Three Brothers Strung Up Near New Orleans By a Mob.

A Boy Kicked to Death By the Lynchers For Not Giving Information.

Their Crime Consisted in Refusing to Swear to the Guilt of Their Brother—The Real Murderer, Who Killed Judge Estopinal, is at Large.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 15.—There was a triple lynching almost within the shadow of this city Saturday night, but it was conducted so quietly that the account published Sunday morning was a surprise. The victims were three Negro brothers, named Julian, and the crime was the shielding of a fourth brother, Rasmus Julian, who on Friday afternoon Judge Victor Estopinal to death while the latter was trying him for a trivial offense, seriously wounding the judge's son. The shooting occurred in the courtroom, and the murderer continued firing until the judge, who followed to close in upon him, fell mortally wounded, immediately slain. The Negro then stood over his victim and fired a fourth shot. Officer Korber ran to the judge, and the Negro made a dash across the ground, but was seized. Just at this time August Estopinal, a son of the murdered official, was coming in from his work, and he gave chase to the man whom he had just seen murder his father. The Negro reached his cabin and coming out, fired two shots at the young man, who sought safety in a house. The Negro provided himself with ammunition and a rifle. He then made for the swamps near the rear of the city, where he was hiding. Poses were immediately organized, and all night and all Saturday the surrounding country was scoured, but the search was fruitless.

The mother, two brothers and two sisters of the Negro Rasmus were arrested Saturday by the city police and taken to the Little Jail. Another brother was arrested later in the day in the same neighborhood and taken to the same jail. On a visit he made to the house where he was being kept, he was found wrapping up some clothing and a loaf of bread. This aroused the suspicion that the articles were to be conveyed to the fugitive. The brothers were discovered going over the Blackbridge, and had a shirt bundled up as if they were intending to flee. The two brothers were caught coming out of the swamps, and as they persistently refused to state where they had come, they, too, were arrested.

About 11 o'clock Saturday night about twenty-five men, armed with rifles and shotguns, came to the jail. Some of them were drunk. They unlocked the door and held a conference as to what they should do. Some were in favor of releasing the brothers, others raised objections, and insisted that only two of the brothers should be taken out and hanged. This was finally agreed upon, and several of the men went into the jail and brought out the two Negroes. They were hurried across to a pasture, one hundred yards distant, and were asked to take their last chance of saving their lives by making a confession. The Negro was made to kneel down and pray. One did so, the other remaining standing, but both prayed fervently. The latter Negro was then hanged. He remained hanging fully five minutes before the second one was hanged. The shorter Negro stood gazing at the terrible death of his brother without flinching.

The mob remained at the place for about half an hour, when some one suggested that they go back and hang the three others. This was opposed by several, and it was finally decided that they should go back and take the remaining brother, named August Parapet and hang him there. The other two were to be taken out and flogged, with an order to get out of the parish in half an hour. The mob then started back to the jail to put their threats into execution. The third brother was taken out to the camp, where, about a mile distant in the interior, he was hanged to a tree, his body hanging in full view of a morbid crowd watching the day, "as a warning to the Negroes that they could not go about killing white people," as one of the members of the mob put it.

The lynching was conducted very quietly, and not a shot was fired during the entire proceedings. In the meantime the real murderer is at liberty, and his brothers, who died to save him from the fate which they met, will soon be resting in unmarked graves, heroes of a peculiarly distinctive type. During the search for Julian on Saturday, one branch of the posse visited the house of a Negro family in the neighborhood of Camp Parapet, and falling to find the object of their search, tried to induce John Willis, a young Negro, to lead the posse to the whereabouts of Julian. He refused to do so or could not do so, and was kicked to death by the gang.

Bank Cashier Dies in a Cell. PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Matthew T. Trumpp was found dead in his cell at Clinton prison Sunday morning. The cause of his death was heart disease. Trumpp was the cashier of the Ulster County Savings bank, at Kingston, N. Y., and, with the president, James A. Cotnam, was convicted of wrecking the institution. They were sentenced in February last to six and a half years each in Clinton prison. Trumpp was 60 years old. He leaves a young wife, who visited him only last week.

In Violent Form. PAIN, or "Cholera," in its most virulent form, has been reported from a village of 1,000 inhabitants in the Basques-Alps. Forty-three cases and thirteen deaths have been reported there.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION!

Too High Pressure.

In these days of keen competition in every line when the business man is compelled to bend his intellect and every energy to the success of his business, the doctor, lawyer, professional man and laborer, to drive themselves at a terrific rate, there can be but one result—an explosion, which, if not resulting in immediate death, leaves them with shattered brains and bodies. They are running at too high pressure. The strain is too great. Something must and does give way. This is equally true of the business of the mind. The mind, too, has its limit, and when it is reached, it is a matter of time before it will explode. This condition is growing worse every day. The rapidity of its increase is awful to contemplate. The minds of our best business men are full of these unfortunate, and are being crowded still further. There is but one solution of the situation, and that is the importance of the situation, and take the necessary measures to overcome it. If you have failing memory, hot flashes, dizziness, nervous or sick headache, biliousness, irritability, melancholy, sleeplessness, fainting, nervous dyspepsia, epilepsy, etc., know that any one of them is but a symptom of the calamity that may befall you, and even though you have used so-called remedies and treated with reputable physicians with little or no benefit, give Dr. Miller's Restorative Nervine a trial. It is the one remedy known to be depended upon for nervous disorders.

Two years ago I used Dr. Miller's Restorative Nervine with marked benefit, and later, before my son, who had been sick with catarrh of the bladder five years in the hands of our best physicians, to try it together with Dr. Miller's Nervine. It is a powerful tonic and blood purifier, and it is a powerful tonic and blood purifier, and it is a powerful tonic and blood purifier.

Dr. Miller's Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists and is a powerful tonic and blood purifier, and it is a powerful tonic and blood purifier, and it is a powerful tonic and blood purifier.

A REQUEST BILL.

Every Little Village in the United States to Have a Bank.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Another "request" bill offered in the house by Charles H. Morgan, of Missouri, proposes that a United States bank shall be opened in every town of 100 inhabitants in which there is a postoffice by the controller of the currency, who shall appoint the board of directors for the first year.

After that they shall be chosen by the stockholders, but the postmaster shall, ex-officio, be a director. The bank is to be located as near the post office as possible, in the same or adjoining building, if possible. Interest at the rate of 8 per cent shall be allowed on daily balances, without compounding, and the United States shall guarantee payment of deposits and interest.

The president and vice-president, speaker of the house, secretary of the treasury and controller of the currency, or a majority of them, shall have power to change the rate of interest to be paid on deposits. All deposits and interest shall be exempt from any form of taxation, and no part of deposits may be withdrawn by the depositor within five years from the date of deposit, and then only on 90 days written notice; but they may be transferred to the credit of any person by check.

Loans shall be made by the banks at the normal rate of 6 per cent, unless the rate be changed by the controller of the currency. No loan shall be made to a foreign country or power or any person residing in a foreign country. No exchange shall be bought or sold by any bank at a premium, and no depositor shall be allowed to withdraw his deposit. The controller of the currency shall provide books for the banks, and appoint examiners to investigate their condition.

BARRING OUT CHOLERA.

Through Inspectors in Germany of Emigrants on Their Way to the United States.

BREITENBURG, Sept. 15.—Dr. Carrington, health officer of the American consulate in Hamburg, has been in Berlin inspecting the processes of disinfection and sanitation for emigrants on their way to the United States. The emigrants, he says, are isolated and taken to disinfecting sheds in Spandau, where they, their baggage and their clothes are fumigated thoroughly. They pass through a series of rooms during the operation, and upon coming out from the last one are hurried into special cars which carry them to Bremen. Nowhere in Berlin are they allowed to come in contact with other passengers. Dr. Carrington says he is quite satisfied with the precautions.

Berlin's city council is anxious to cremate the bodies of patients who must be buried at public expense, and applied recently to a court as to whether anybody could legally forbid their taking this step, and were informed this week that they might cremate bodies in case relatives of the dead made no objection. Since the cholera epidemic of 1892 the authorities in Hamburg, Heidelberg and Gotha have had many bodies of paupers cremated, and the same practice is expected to obtain soon in most of the German cities.

CALLED FROM BED

To Receive at the Door the Fatal Shot of an Assassin.

STEELESVILLE, O., Sept. 15.—A probable murder occurred at Dillonville, a small mining village a few miles west of this city, Saturday midnight. Steve Lawrence planned a knife into the back of Michael Romadi, producing what is thought to be a fatal wound. Both men were miners employed in the Little Pittsburgh, Wilmington and Lake Erie coal Co. at Dillonville.

Saturday while at work the two men had a dispute about making a "break" in the mine. Both became angry, but were separated before any serious trouble resulted. Shortly before 11 o'clock Saturday night Steve Lawrence went to Michael Romadi's house and returned with a knife into Romadi's left breast. The blade entered near the heart and the wound was pronounced fatal. After the stabbing Lawrence made his escape, but has not yet been captured, although he is thought to be in hiding near Dillonville. The sheriff left here Sunday to capture him.

YELLOW FEVER EPIDEMIC.

Eleven New Cases in Brunswick Cause a Panic Among the Inhabitants.

BREWSVILLE, Ga., Sept. 15.—Eleven new cases of yellow fever to-day, and an epidemic declared. Such was the announcement made by Col. Goodyear, at the board of health meeting Sunday, sending a thrill of horror through the grief-stricken residents of Brunswick county. Hundreds hurriedly rushed to the trains Sunday afternoon, and it will need no military force to depopulate the city. There are those in Brunswick for whom the government and people of this country must think. They can not leave for they have no money, and "Hull" or we perished. Every that would go on from hundreds of thousands, did they know it could be heard. The change in the weather is unfavorable, and the worst may be expected.

The Harrison Forces.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—It is said that the Harrison campaign will be launched during the next few months. Dear Park, Md., is to be the battle-ground. Several of the republican leaders will come, and both Harrison and his banner-bearer, Stephen B. Elkins, will occupy cottages on the spot. Arrangements are being pushed for a big rally of the citizens to meet at Dear Park early in the summer of '94, and already a large contingency of politicians have engaged cottages.

Joe Downing Gets It.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The president Saturday sent into the senate the nomination of Joseph Downing, of Dayton, O., to be collector of internal revenue for the Cincinnati district.

DULL AND CONTENTED.

Graphic Sketch of the People in a Well-Governed French-Canadian Village.

In the quiet village, where the good cure's way is law, there is likely to be little bawling and less drinking, for the French-Canadians are neither quarrelsome nor intemperate. There may be a tavern, or perhaps two taverns, where not only guests are received, but where liquor is sold, but the cure seems to it that they are very early in the evening. Long before midnight the streets of the place are deserted, and a stillness, which need have no fear of drunken hoodlums. A well-governed French-Canadian village, where the cure is thoroughly respected, because of his wisdom and piety, affords a decided contrast to many rural communities in English Canada and on our own side of the border.

The people are not enterprising. At least this seems to be true of all but a few exceptions. They are content to take their place in the world, and with the happy faith that the morrow will bring with it its daily bread. They are averse to breaking in new lands, and, as the families are large, the division of the farms generation after generation finally results in such small portions that some of the children must seek employment elsewhere if all are to live. Very few of them are willing to go to the new lands of Manitoba and the north-west, and find congenial occupation in the cities. They are admirable mechanics and are most loyal and devoted servants, says Henry Loomis Nelson, in Harper's Magazine.

The Scotchman or Englishman who is at the head of a great establishment prefers the French-Canadians to his own countrymen as subordinates. He will tell you that the Frenchmen will remain with him all their lives; that no such thought as seeking new employment or leaving the old for the purpose of engaging in ventures for himself will ever enter a Frenchman's head. He will stay by his old employer all his life, and his son will succeed in his own or a better place in the service of the house. On the other hand, the Englishman or Scotchman will take the first opportunity to go into business for himself, and will use every means to secure a stepping-stone to something better.

AN IMPORTANT EVENT.

A Prince's Footstep Commemorated by a Monument.

Americans are not the only people who show an undue reverence for a lordly title. The author of "Around the World" has been the guest of his visit to Stanley, Falkland Islands, the southernmost town on the globe, where an incident convinced him that a name sometimes equals an event. The decidedly English expression of the town is greatly heightened upon going on shore, where I land upon a small jetty, at whose extremity stands a pyramidal brick and stone monument, bearing on a tablet the rather inexpressive communication: "Alfred, 1843-1874."

Knowing that many nations had at different times claimed possession of these islands, and that the English fleet had resulted, it was but natural to suppose that this proud pile distinguished the spot where some British Heroic Captain had landed, and repelled the landing cutters of several French or Spanish men-of-war, and that his appreciative countrymen had there erected the fact known to the world of the great world as might by accident stray thither.

The very first citizen I met I begged to tell me more of this brave, this doughty Alfred, apologizing, of course, for a memory defective in matters of historical detail. And my blood almost congealed within my veins and my heart stood still with awe as I learned that here, here on this very spot, a "real live" English prince had once set his foot on coming ashore to pay a visit to the governor.

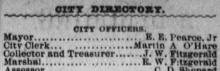

My informant stood solemn and serious, but showed no signs of anything that I was prodigal enough to laugh.

Good Bob White.

The male, or "Bob White," deserves honorable mention among gallinaceous birds because he is particularly good to his wife. He always helps her to hatch her eggs, and if anything keeps her away will take the whole duty on himself. This is particularly attested by a writer quoted by Capt. Bendire in his "Life of the History of American Birds." He says: "In June, 1886, while I was on a visit to Dr. J. M. Pickett, of Cedarville, Ala., he informed me of having seen a male Bob White incubating. He had visited the nest at various times on different days, and always found the male bird on the nest. Wishing to be an eye-witness of so interesting a sight, I rode several miles with the doctor to the nest. There we found Dr. White, and everything was all right, but not into the eggs were never hatched. Dr. Pickett frequently went to the nest to watch the progress of the incubation, and he found that the eggs would not hatch, he destroyed them, to prevent the useless occupation of the male bird. He found that the male had probably been dead some hours before the male found the nest deserted; hence the eggs cooled and would not hatch."

A Wonderful Event.

Two Americans in the employment of the government of British Columbia recently accomplished a feat hitherto deemed impossible by crossing the Selkirk mountains in the dead of winter. The object of the trip was to ascertain if it were possible to lay out a pack and cattle trail over the range from Glen to Ketchikan. The party consisted of one hundred and fifty miles on snowshoes, fifty miles over the wildest mountain country, where glaciers descend several miles from the top at an altitude of six thousand five hundred feet, which is practicable for cattle and pack trails in summer. The party was trapped in snow during most of the trip.
